Steve Greer retired from the United States Army after serving more than twenty years as an Airborne Ranger and Green Beret. He is a four-time competitor in the grueling Lieutenant General David E. Grange, Jr., Best Ranger Competition - the toughest 3-day mental and physical challenge in the world. At 33 years of age he was selected as one of the youngest Sergeants Major in Army history.

He is a former special assistant to the Office of the Secretary of Defense serving as the only retired Non-commissioned Officer on Secretary Rumsfeld's Military Analyst Group. He served as a Senior Fellow at the National Defense Council Foundation conducting research on terrorism and serves on the Center for Security Policy Military Committee in Washington, DC.

Between 2003-2008 he gave more than 300 television and radio interviews on programs such as Fox & friends, Studio B w/Shepard Smith, Hannity & Colmes, The O'Reilly Factor, CNN Now w/Paula Zahn, MSNBC, Sky News in Europe, G. Gordon Liddy Show, and Radio Factor w/Bill O'Reilly. He was the first television military analyst to discuss the capture of Saddam Hussein and provided first-hand commentary from Israel during the assassination of Hamas terrorist leader Sheikh Ahmad Yassin. While military analysts were paid more than $1,000 per interview, he refused to be compensated for discussing American troops in harms way. Greer dedicated several years and hundreds of interviews to supporting our troops.

For several years, Greer had special access to our nation's most influential leaders. Meetings at the Pentagon and the White House were routine affairs. Perks such as private dinner with Army Chief of Staff General Schoomaker in Washington and lunch with Ambassador Khalilzad in Iraq were not uncommon. Flights aboard Air Force Two, observing interrogations at Gitmo, speaking at the Capital with members of Congress, and jet-setting across the globe from Haiti to Israel to Iraq all part of the gig.

During all of the hoopla, Greer never forgot the values he learned in the Army nor the heroes he served with. In 2008, Dr. Greer ended his media career to focus his energy on inspiring the next generation of American patriots.

He graduated from Liberty University in 1991 and received a Master of Arts in Land Warfare from American Military University in 1998. He earned a Doctorate from Capella University in 2008 where his research focused on experiential learning theory and its application for teaching irregular warfare.

Dr. Greer is a Professor at American Military University and teaches classes in Terrorism and Security. He lives in Georgia with his wife Jennifer and their children, Aiden and Abby.
